

EDITOR'S NOTE

Just as the last issue of Estudos Kantianos, published in January, the current one contains articles from what is to be a future Kantian Electronic Lexicon in Portuguese Language [Léxico Kantiano Eletrônico em Língua Portuguesa], an enterprise which began in mid-2015 and congregates a few dozens of Brazilian and Portuguese collaborators, as well as German, Argentinian, Spanish, Italian and North-American scholars. The present collaborations herein collected are by António Marques, Renato Valois, Rodrigo Miguel Benvenuto and Silvia del Luján Di Sanza, all renowned researchers at an international level, whose contributions for the work at hand render them all the more indispensable for those devoted to Kant's thought.

The precious contributions by Fábio César Scherer and Nilmar Pellizzaro complete the section Articles of the current issue.

In the section Translations of this 2nd issue of volume VI of Estudos Kantianos, is to be found an important work of translation and presentation of Kant's Reflexionen on moral philosophy by Bruno Cunha.

Now restructured, the "Editorial Team" of our journal [<http://revistas.marilia.unesp.br/index.php/ek/about/editorialTeam>] is now composed of the following scholars:

Fernando M. F. Silva [Centro de Filosofia da Universidade de Lisboa]

Gualtiero Lorini [Università Cattolica del Sacro Cuore – Milano]

Paulo Jesus [Centro de Filosofia da Universidade de Lisboa]

Ubirajara Rancan de Azevedo Marques [Faculdade de Filosofia e Ciências da Universidade Estadual Paulista]

I thank all who now publish in Estudos Kantianos, as well as the many Brazilian and foreign reviewers who have been entrusted with examining the original texts sent to this journal.

I wish the reader a fine reading and reflection!
