

EDITORS' WORD

A platform for Kantian and circum-Kantian exchange, the journal Estudos Kantianos is proud to associate itself to one of today's most renowned Kantian events, the Kantian Multilaterals, and be the recipient of several of its finest contributions, to be published in this issue.

Held annually, or every two years, since 2008, the Kantian Multilateral is a fertile, ever-mutating occasion for theoretical exchange and discussion between Kantian scholars from all nationalities, devoted to all areas of Kant's thought. The last of these colloquia, entitled "9th Multilateral Kant Colloquium: Justice, Peace, and Cosmopolitan Values", held in the School of Arts and Humanities, University of Lisbon, Portugal, on September 22-24, 2021, was not an exception. Nor are the contributions herein published, twelve in number, which not only represent a stimulating reassessment of the topic at hand, but succeed in considering it from multiple, at times completely heterogenous perspectives, such as Law, Pedagogy, Cosmopolitanism, Medicine, Mathematics, Theoretical and Practical Philosophy, among others.

Apart from these articles, pertaining to the thematic issue, a thirteenth article, authored by Adriano Perin, Mónica Herrero Noguera, and Ana Carolina Marcelo da Silva, as well as a review by Paolo Treves, are also part of this issue.

A word for our colleague and friend Sophie Grapotte, who actively participated in the realization of this issue of Estudos Kantianos as its co-editor. To her we warmly extend our gratitude.

One last word for a recent, invaluable addition to the editorial team of Estudos Kantianos; that of Prof. Marita Rainsborough, from the University of Lüneburg/ Centre for Philosophy at the University of Lisbon (CFUL, Portugal), whom we now warmly welcome – this being, as it is, her first issue in this new condition.

Fernando Silva
Gualtiero Lorini
Marita Rainsborough
Paulo Jesus
Ubirajara Marques

<https://doi.org/10.36311/2318-0501.2022.v10n1.p7>

